BIOGRAPHY

Crystal James is an attorney, educator, leader, and motivator. Born in Broxton, Georgia, James as a first-generation college student, received her B.S. in biology from Clark Atlanta University, her Master of Public Health from Emory University, her Doctor of Jurisprudence from the University of Houston, and her license to practice law from the State of Georgia, all by the age of twenty-six. James served as the first executive intern to Dr. Kenneth Olden during his tenure as Director of the National Institutes of Health's National Institute for Environment Health Sciences. James realized that the combination of her scientific, policy and legal training provided her an opportunity to translate scientific research into sound public health policy. Attorney James has over twenty-four years of public health experience and a background in program planning and evaluation that she utilizes to enhance her roles as Special Assistant to the President for COVID-19, Co-Director of the Center for Health & Economic Equity, Interim Vice-President for External Affairs, and General Counsel at Tuskegee University. Attorney James is a proud mother of one daughter and an active member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc.
