

Report to Congress for Fiscal Year 2018 (July 1, 2017–June 30, 2018)

The CDC Foundation is an independent nonprofit and the sole entity created by Congress to mobilize philanthropic and private-sector resources to support the critical health protection work of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The CDC Foundation is focused on one priority—helping CDC improve the health and lives of people on a population basis. Since 1995, the CDC Foundation has launched approximately 1,000 programs and raised over $800 million. The CDC Foundation managed nearly 300 CDC-led programs in the United States and in more than 130 countries last year.

The CDC Foundation had a successful year during the period of July 1, 2017–June 30, 2018 (FY 2018) in its efforts to extend the life-saving work of CDC. Below are program highlights, financial highlights and a listing of contributors. Additional detailed financial information, including the Foundation’s audited financial statements and its annual tax information returns (Form 990) as well as more information on the Foundation’s programs and partners, is available on the Foundation’s website at www.cdcfoundation.org.

The CDC Foundation is pleased to report that, for the twelfth year in a row, the Foundation received a 4-star rating from Charity Navigator, the nation’s largest and most utilized evaluator of charities. Only one percent of charities rated have received 12 consecutive 4-star evaluations.

Program Highlights

Below is a selection of highlights from across the CDC Foundation’s programs in fiscal year 2018.

Accelerating CDC’s 6 | 18 Initiative for better health: CDC’s 6|18 Initiative addresses six high-burden, high-cost health conditions—such as high blood pressure and diabetes. CDC is targeting 18 evidence-based interventions and connecting with healthcare purchasers, payers and providers to improve health and control costs related to these conditions. The CDC Foundation and Grantmakers in Health, with support from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, held sessions to advance cross-sector engagement, collaboration and education around CDC’s 6|18 Initiative by fostering new or expanded partnership opportunities between philanthropies and state health departments. As part of this effort, the CDC Foundation also developed resources to help health departments form their own partnerships.

Preventing maternal deaths: An estimated 700 women die of pregnancy-related causes each year in the United States and more than 50,000 have serious health complications. Many maternal deaths and complications can be prevented. Strong, accurate data are critical for identifying opportunities for preventing deaths among mothers and designing effective interventions. A collaboration between the CDC Foundation, CDC and the Association of Maternal and Child Health Programs is working to better understand the causes and factors contributing to pregnancy-related death, with the aim of identifying opportunities with the greatest potential to end preventable maternal mortality. This partnership is made possible through an award agreement with Merck on behalf of its Merck for Mothers program.

Hurricane response in Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands: The CDC Foundation worked with a number of donors and partners in support of the ongoing response to the 2017 hurricanes that inflicted significant damage on the U.S. territories of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands (USVI), including the islands’ health systems. A wide range of essential projects advanced CDC’s response while bolstering the work of territorial health departments that are continuing to recover from last year’s storms including an island-wide, large-scale vaccination initiative in Puerto Rico. The CDC Foundation linked the Puerto Rico Department of Health with the Vaccination Coalition of Puerto Rico (VOCES) to mobilize the immunization campaign using a mobile unit to conduct as many as 40 vaccination clinics each week. With the support of the CDC Foundation, VOCES and the Puerto Rico Department of Health reached more than 110,000 people with immunizations against influenza, hepatitis, and pneumonia in more than 540 locations throughout the island. Among other activities, the CDC Foundation also supported the assembly of a mobile health clinic in USVI to ensure that medicines and care can be delivered to hard-to-reach populations.

Using 3-D innovation to advance the science of body measurement: Body measurement—or anthropometry—helps practitioners and policy makers understand the nutritional status of a population, including children, and identify health risk factors. This year the CDC Foundation, working with CDC through support from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, is conducting a study to evaluate an innovative anthropometric technology that uses 3-D imaging. This technology operates from a mobile device, which is easier to carry in the field and use with children, and holds the promise of greater accuracy when compared with traditional anthropometric tools. This new tool and emerging technologies could revolutionize how practitioners take body measurements—leveraging accurate and current data for a healthier society.

Tackling a leading cause of death for AIDS patients in South Africa: Cryptococcal meningitis (CM) is a common infection and leading cause of death for people with HIV/AIDS. More than 223,000 estimated CM cases occurred in 2014, resulting in nearly 200,000 deaths. Three-quarters of these deaths were in sub-Saharan Africa. In the past, it has proven difficult to save lives affected by CM in resource-limited settings. This situation is changing in South Africa, where the CDC Foundation worked with CDC to conduct a program from 2014 to 2018 with support from Pfizer aimed at protecting patients with advanced HIV from CM. The program included laboratory and clinical trainings, enhanced monitoring, and costing and implementation of national CM screenings. Since the rollout, screenings in South Africa remain high, with 98 percent of eligible patients receiving screens. Almost 24,000 CM patients have been identified, providing an opportunity for them to receive much-needed treatment—key to saving lives.

Dissolving microneedle patch for measles and rubella vaccination: While an effective measles and rubella (MR) vaccine is available, challenges can exist in delivery of the vaccine, particularly to remote areas around the world. To ensure proper storage and handling, the current MR vaccine must be refrigerated up to the point of injection. Also, the vaccine must be delivered by trained medical personnel, and the syringes and needles must be disposed of properly. Through a grant to the CDC Foundation from UNICEF, a collaborative team from CDC, the Georgia Institute of Technology and Micron Biomedical are working on a project to dry and stabilize the MR vaccine. To date, the researchers have been able to transfer the vaccine to a microneedle patch for delivery. The patch is a small flexible tab consisting of 100 tiny dissolving microneedles that deliver the vaccine through the skin. This innovative approach addresses several of the challenges in the fight against measles and rubella. Chief among these is that the dissolving microneedle patch may not require a cold chain to the point of delivery. Vastly more portable, the vaccine could potentially reach much deeper into areas that traditionally lack coverage. Though the MR microneedle patch still faces clinical trial in humans, experiments in non-human primates have shown tremendous promise.

Financial Information

For the year ending June 30, 2018, contributions to the CDC Foundation were $60.4 million and consisted of: $32.1 million from foundations; $19.5 million from other organizations and individuals; $4.8 million from corporations; and $4.0 million in direct federal grants. The majority of these contributions were restricted to the following program focus areas: $8.5 million to infectious disease; $5.5 million to emergency preparedness and response; $33.8 million to global health; and $12.6 million to other areas.

The Foundation received federal funding of $1.25 million to help defray administrative costs to the Foundation. This funding was primarily used to fund the costs of the staff who were responsible for building the partnerships that generated $60.4 million in support of expanded programming for CDC.

As of June 30, 2018, the Foundation had total assets of $116 million; total liabilities of $19.3 million; and total net assets of $96.7 million. Eighty-four percent of these assets were restricted by the donors to fund specific projects for CDC. For the year ending June 30, 2018, the Foundation generated total contributions and other revenues of $61.6 million and incurred total program costs and other expenses of $65.8 million. These program costs and other expenses consisted of $24.3 million in project grants; $36 million in program costs; $3.6 million for management and general expenses; and $1.9 million in fundraising costs. The CDC Foundation follows generally accepted accounting principles. Therefore, it recognizes commitments made by donors to fund projects as contributions at the time of the commitment whereas disbursement of project funds may span multiple years. Accordingly, in certain years based on the timing of disbursement, project costs and expenses may exceed total contributions received.
